INTRODUCTION.

The Legislature, at its session of 1874, passed an Act entitled "an Act amendatory of and supplementary to an Act to create the office of Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture, and for other purposes," approved April 6th, 1874, authorizing the Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture to have printed in a proper form a description of all the lands held by the State for taxes, and lands held by the United States, subject to entry under the laws of this State, and the Homestead Laws of the United States, together with such information relative thereto as will tend to induce Immigration.

In accordance with the provisions of the above recited Act the Commissioner presents this pamphlet to the public, and requests that its contents may be perused with care and with profit.

THE POSITION OF THE STATE.

The geographical position of the State is described as follows by Wailes, in his admirable Report of the Agriculture and Geology of the State:

"The State of Mississippi lies between the thirty-first and thirty-fifth parallels of north latitude, with the addition of that portion lying between the first mentioned parallel and the Gulf of Mexico and Lake Borgne, and east of Pearl river. On the west it is bounded by the Mississippi and Pearl rivers, and on the east by a line dividing it from the State of Alabama, which is drawn from the mouth of Bear creek, on the Tennessee river, to the north-western corner of Washington county, Alabama; and thence south to a point on Grand bay on the Gulf of Mexico, about seventeen miles due west from the Bay of Mobile. The State also embraces the islands in the Gulf within six leagues of the northern shore, the principal of which are Horne, Ship, and Cat Islands. The width of the State along the northern boundary is one hundred and twenty miles; on the sea shore seventy-eight miles, and along the 31st degree of north latitude one hundred and eighty-six miles. The greatest length from north to south is three hundred and thirty miles. It embraces an area of 55,500 square miles, or 35,520,000 acres."

POPULATION.

The population of the State, as appears from the census of 1870, is 827,922, or about 14 inhabitants to the square mile, an increase of 36,617 over the Census of 1860. This increase in the population was, as the records show, largely domestic immigration. The State has never before presented inducements for the encouragement of immigration, and in consequence thereof millions of acres of fertile lands, situated in every part of the State, invite thrifty and industrious settlers to an independent competence.

AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES.

In order to present an interesting view of our productive qualities we have divided the State into four geological sections, as follows: The Mississippi Bottom; the Marls, Lignites, and Green Sands Sections; the Prairie Country; and the Pine Timbered Region.

THE MISSISSIPPI BOTTOM.

This section represents the great body of alluvial lands in the Mississippi Delta, and contains about 4,000,000 acres of the richest and most productive soil in the State. It is composed of the counties of Tunica, Coahoma, Bolivar, Sunflower, Leflore, Washington and Issaquena, with portions of the counties of Warren, Yazoo, Holmes, Carroll, Grenada, Tallahatchie, Panola and DeSoto. Cotton is the staple product of the State, and in this section the yield is enormous, averaging a bale and a half to the acre. Corn and potatoes also grow in abundance.

The "Bottom Lands," so called, otherwise included in the term Delta, having reference to the best cotton section of the State, in depth and fertility of soil, are only equalled by the valley of the Nile. This soil never exhausts, and requires no fertilizers to maintain its richness. Reference is made to the statistics to show the fabulous magnitude of the productions of this section, and yet scarcely one-third of its area is under cultivation. When fully reclaimed and made productive, the Delta of the Mississippi, largely within this State, is capable of sustaining a nation. The productive power of these lands is not only of national but of international interest and importance. Purchasable now at what is really a nominal value, he who soon becomes the owner of a reasonable body of the bottom lands of Mississippi, will, with the growth of our State, find himself the possessor of a princely inheritance. The entire possessions of many a European Prince cannot compare with some of the magnificent plantations to be seen in the counties above named. Personal inspection of these lands and an inspection of the following statistics are earnestly invited:

FROM THE UNITED STATES CENSUS OF 1870.

Counties.	Bales Cotton.	Bushels Corn.
Bolivar	15,571	182,723
Coahoma	11,456	151,985

Issaquena	15,821	82,825
Yazoo	26,047	290,448
Warren	32,175	213,073

MAELS, LIGNITES AND GREEN SANDS.

The counties composing this section are Marshall, Benton, Tippah, Tishomingo, Lafayette, Itawamba, Yallobusha, Calhoun, Montgomery, Choctaw, Attala, Winston, Madison, Leake, Neshoba, Scott, Newton, Landerdale and Clarke, together with portions of the counties of DeSoto, Alcorn, Prentiss, Union, Lee, Pontotoc, Panola, Tallahatchie, Grenada, Carroll, Chickasaw, Monroe, Lowndes, Colfax, Oktibbeha, Noxubee, Kemper, Holmes, Yazoo, Warren, Hinds, Rankin, Smith, Jasper, Clarke, Wayne, Claiborne, Jefferson, Adams and Wilkinson. Cotton, corn, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, rice, sugar, wheat, tobacco, indigo, turpentine, peas, beans, oats, fruits of all kinds, including many varieties of grapes, are grown successfully within this broad and productive area.

On the line of the railroads market gardening is carried on extensively, and early vegetables are shipped to northern markets, where a ready sale is made, and good prices obtained. For health, this section is, perhaps, the best in the State or in the world, it being high and the air dry and bracing. Timber is plenty, and easily obtained for either building, fencing or fuel. The lands can be either rented or purchased at very low figures, and upon easy terms. Stock is easily raised and but little care is necessary. We seldom have more than one snow in one year, and our winters are so very mild that farmers cultivate the soil the entire year. The average price of lands in this State is five dollars per acre, and, considering its immense and great productive qualities, affords to the poor man, particularly, inviting prospects no where else presented. In short, a home for rich or poor, with all the adornments of fruit, shade trees, shrubbery and flowers, afforded by a bountiful climate, can be created in Mississippi in a shorter period, and with less expenditure of labor and capital, than any where else on this beautiful earth.

PRAIRIE COUNTRY.

The world-famous prairies of Mississippi run through the counties of Kemper, Noxubee, Lowndes, Oktibbeha, Colfax, Chickasaw, Monroe, Lee, Pontotoc, Union, Prentiss and Alcorn. This section of the State is gently undulating, heavily timbered, and with water in abundance. The soil is black and rich, growing corn and cotton in abundance. The Mobile and Ohio Railway runs through the entire prairie section, from Mobile to the Ohio River. The climate is perfectly healthy, and during the heated term is daily visited with the most delightful breezes, which produce a cooling and pleasant effect.

Land can be purchased here as reasonable as in any other part of the State, and upon as liberal terms. This, taking into consideration the splendid facilities offered in transportation, presents to the immigrant an acceptable location for a home, where he and his family can dwell in peace, and by earnest labor obtain a livelihood with an ease and certainty not excelled by any other country.

PINE TIMBERED REGION.

This region is composed of the counties of Jackson, Harrison, Hancock, Pearl, Greene, Perry, Marion, Pike, Amite, Franklin, Lincoln, Lawrence, Covington, Jones, Simpson and Copiah, with parts of the counties of Wayne, Jasper, Smith, Rankin, Hinds, Claiborne, Jefferson, Adams and Wilkinson. A description of this section of the State is very ably presented by one of our most distinguished citizens, long well known in the political and literary annals of the State, in a series of letters to the Pilot, over the non de plume of "Moderator." We insert them here, and ask a careful and thoughtful perusal:

THE PINE WOODS OF MISSISSIPPI—RURAL LIFE—THE RESOURCES OF THE COUNTRY.

The whole country east of Pearl river, and south of the northern line of Covington county, may be designated as the "Pine Woods." The entire region is remarkable for its salubrity. People make a comfortable living with so little effort that their energies are not exerted, and the country does not improve like those sections where there are more difficulties to overcome. A young man marries a fine, blooming, industrious girl, who knows how to rear poultry, make cheese and butter, ply the wheel and shuttle, and do up her own and her husband's apparel. He begins life with half a dozen cows, a pair of oxen, a pony and an ax. His wife's dower is a feather bed, three or four quilts, a frying pan, a spinning-wheel, and a few fowls. He chooses a settlement five or ten miles from any other; builds a camp; then cut down the sapling pines, strips off the bark, calls in the neighbors for twenty miles round, and in one day they complete his cabin of one square room. This contains the bed, table, a row of shelves, and his long rifle hangs over the fire-place on wooden hooks. In one corner stands the spinning-wheel, seldom silent, and on the shelf, near the door, a water bucket and gourd, one or two milk piggins, scoured as fair and bright as sand and water can make them. A small "truck patch," and a little field planted in sweet potatoes, rice, and a few plants of indigo and tobacco, lay adjoining. A sparkling spring bubbling near by, from its bed of ferns and rushes, supplies the purest water, and the lightwood (or resinous remains of the decaying pine), furnishes fuel and brilliant light. Here they live without expense. In many instances the land belongs to the Government. He pays no tax, no lawyer's fee, no doctor's bill, and needs no money. The woods abound with deer and turkeys, raccoons and squirrels, opossums and patridges; the yard with fowls; the living brooks with fish. His cattle range over a thousand hills, up to their shoulders in grass or succulent reed-brakes, requiring neither shelter nor winter forage, and, in the sea-board counties, not even salt. These supply his table, and the wild bees, reveling amidst a boundless variety of flowers, provide for him, in many a hollow tree, the most aromatic honey.

Visit this young couple five years afterward, and you will find an addition to the dwelling; a loom in the rear, under a shed; the herd increased to fifty or a hundred; the fireside made joyous by the bright eyes and gladsome voices of three or four white-headed little ones; as like each other as so many peas. Mem.: I never saw a child in the pine woods with dark hair.

During all this time he has never had a fever; never been within fifty miles of a doctor; never been called to a funeral. The rose on the cheek of his wife is even more beautiful than when he first wedded her, and, aided by her thrift and cheered by her smiles, he has lived comfortably, not expending over ten dollars a year, while his little capital has quadrupled; and all this without wearing physical labor or anxiety of mind. He is, in fact, a practical philosopher. He feels none of the surges that sway the busy world. From day to day, events flow on in the same smooth channel, without a ripple on the surface. His temper is unruffled. He seldom hears a sermon, but he sees God in "the sunshine and the shower," and the smiling stars. The great volume of nature, spread out before him, in sky and forest and river, with the changing seasons, and the phenomena of vegetation, provide occupation for his mind, and he finds himself growing richer and wiser every year, without any new tastes or vicious habits, and without making any struggles for riches. Can there be a happier than this dream-like life? They are, indeed, the most contented and virtuous people in the world, exempt from debt and litigation, living plentifully and hospitably, and with no lock or bolt on door and window.

The soil of this region is generally thin, interspersed with small tracts of fertile land. Grass of the coarse, rank species peculiar to pine woods, grows luxuriantly, and upon it the cattle feast and fatten. In winter they find a rich pasturage in the cane and reed-brakes, and in marshes and ravines, and the long moss that hangs from the drooping limbs of the swamp and live oaks. Horses, cattle, mules and sheep may be bred with profit, and without stables or grain. But the great source of wealth for this section must ultimately, be the trade in lumber. It is thickly planted with a vast forest of yellow pine; on low lands with pitch pine; on lower and water lands with meadow pine—all valuable for sawing. Then on the water-courses there are large bodies of white oak, water oak, hickory or gum, of many varieties and of gigantic proportions. The swamps are studded with juniper, cedar and cypress. Finer, straighter, loftier trees than these forests can show, are nowhere found. For a hundred and fifty miles on a stretch, one may traverse these ancient woods, and see them, as they have stood for countless years, untouched by the hand of man, scathed only by lightning or the hurricane. This growth of giant pines is unbroken, save where rivers or large creeks intervene, and then we find oaks, chestnut, gum, hickory, dogwood, sassafras, poplar, ash, beech, magnolia, white bay, elm, maple, box-elder, linn, and blackberry of colossal growth.

Water power, of great capacity and unfailing, is abundant. But no railroad taps it, and the district and its resources are unknown. No country is more favorable for railroads. For a hundred miles or more it slopes to the sea-shore. Numerous streams, with their level valleys, run in the same direction. No mountains to tunnel. No rock to blast. The surface is dry and solid, and the heart of oak or pine are close at hand. And a capacious harbor, ready for the reception of the road.

PASCAGOULA AND ITS ATTRACTIONS—OYSTER BREEDING—CAPACITIES OF THE COUNTRY—MR. DUCAYETTE'S EXPERIMENTS.

There is no more delightful place on this, or any other sea-coast, than East Pascagoula and its surroundings. Its location is beautiful, and the salt-water bathing perfect. It is renowned for its oysters—for flavor, fatness, and size they are equal to any in the country. The bayous and creeks here seem to be specially adapted to the growth of first-class oysters, and the bedding and breeding of them might be made a remunerative enterprise. I wonder it has not attracted attention and capital, when we know how successfully and extensively the business is followed in Europe and at the North in localities, and under circumstances, not near so favorable. In this view, there are many lagoons and bayous between Pascagoula and Mobile, that would become valuable. The production would be immense, but there is no limit to the demand. The whole North-west might be supplied with oysters of a higher grade than they can find there, and the shipment in the shell, in cans, and in pickle, would give employment to many hands and bring a great deal of money into the country.

I have spent many happy days at Pascagoula, at various times, enjoying the hospitalities of Maurice and Antonio—both first class artists, priding themselves on their science and invention. Their tables were generally served in the French style, and their dishes after the most famous Parisian recipes; but every now and then, under an inspiration, they improvised a chef d'œuvre, that Vathel himself, might envy. Who will ever forget their portage a la tortue, their purée de gibier, filets de pompano, fricasie de poulets, dindon a la financier, and salade unique—the child of their own brain—an inspiration of their own genius—in comparison with which all other salads, whether French, Spanish, or Italian, are insipid and tasteless. These gentlemen, or their successors, it is presumed, are yet at Pascagoula, and if so, I advise all gourmands to pay them a visit. Or why should they not open an institute, and invite pupils to study the divine art, on which human comfort and health so much depend.

You have asked me, and so have numerous correspondents in the North and West, who have read my letters in the Pilot, whether farming, fruit growing and stock breed can be profitable followed on and near the coast. Perhaps I had better tell you what I saw, some years ago, in the vicinity of Pascagoula. The farm and pastures of my friend, Mr. F. Ducayette, consisted of about 6,000 acres, embracing Point Le Chene, celebrated for its game, and Bayou Casotte, for its oysters, that command a premium wherever they are sold.

SHEEP.

South Mississippi has the reputation of being peculiarly adapted to sheep. Mr. Ducayette showed me some imported Oxfordshire and Southdowns, uncommonly fine, designed chiefly for mutton, as they are a hardy, well formed breed, with a singular faculty for accumulating fat and flesh, in the exact proportion required for the table. Various crosses had been made with these animals.

The cross on the Merino had lowered the quality of the wool of the latter, but had increased the weight of both his wool and carcass. The cross on the imported Saxony had produced a beautiful and close-wooled sheep, and the cross on the native had quite changed its appearance and doubled its value. This enterprising gentleman had, likewise, procured, at great expense, and no little diplomacy, a pair of Merino's from Rambouillet, of the isolated breed sent originally from the Escorial to Louis XIV, which have ever since remained the property of the crown, and been preserved so pure that the Spanish breeders themselves esteem it a great privilege to obtain a buck to recuperate their flocks. The celebrated sheep of Saxony consist of the Infantado or Niggretti, and the Electorals, all originally from Spain, but greatly improved by high culture and feeding. The first were introduced when Spain and Germany were one; the latter were imported for the Elector of Saxony, in 1765. A first class buck, of either of these will command, in Germany, five hundred dollars and upward.

CATTLE.

Mr. Ducayette showed me imported Durhams, Devons, and Ayreshires, besides some short-horns from Kentucky, and some beautiful yearlings, crosses on the indigenous stock; heavy in the hind quarters, broad in the loins, wide across the hips, straight on the back, deep in the brisket, small head and neck, and legs tapering like a lady's finger. The most remarkable animal was a young Brama bull, bred by the late Chas. McHatton, of Baton Rouge, from a pair imported from the jungles of the Ganges. He was milk white, with red ears and tail, hair as fine as silk, of noble proportions, the muscles unusually developed, and of gentle disposition. His magnificent head reminded me, in its grandeur and majesty, of the head of Jupiter, by Praxiteles, and of Ovid's description of the same deity, when, in the disguise of a bull, he undertook to carry off the daughter of Agenor:

“Large rolls of fat about his shoulders clung,
And from his neck the double dewlap hung;
His skin was whiter than the snow that lies
Unsoiled by the breath of tropic skies.
Small, shining horns on his curl'd forehead stand,
As turn'd and polished by the workman's hand.
His eye-brows rolled, not frantically bright,
But gazed and languished with a gentle light;
His every look was peaceful, and express'd
The softness of the lover in the beast.

In certain antique intaglios, representing the combat between Hercules and the Cretan bull; and in the celebrated cartoon by Raphael, of St. Paul preaching at Athens, where a Roman sacrifice is exhibited in the bull about to be slain, in his grand proportions and general expression, one may almost fancy that the poet and the artists must have had in view some ancestor of this noble Pascagoula bull. The peculiarity of this breed from the Ganges, is the hump over the shoulders and their union of the strength of the ox—with the action and movement of the horse. These steers in harness will walk six miles an hour, and they move through marshes and mud with celerity. The breed would be invaluable to the South, and far cheaper than horses or mules, for the plough.

HORSES.

In the stables I noticed several fine mares, and a beautiful stallion by imported Messenger, out of a Morgan mare. He had been bought not with reference to the turf, but to improve our saddle and harness stock. With such a sire, south Mississippi might rival ancient Thessaly, “Whose generous courses of immortal breed,

Sired by the winds, and like the winds in speed.”

HOGS.

Mr. Ducayette had long tested every variety of hogs on his famous stock farm on the Bayou St. John, near New Orleans, and he prefers the Suffolk and Middlesex, as most thrifty and prolific.

FOWLS.

Every domestic fowl to be found in the four quarters of the earth, he had here on his farm.

FRUIT.

I observed the Seckle and Bartlett pear trees loaded with fruit; several varieties of apple; the jujube, French chestnut, quince and peach, all dwarfed by rigid pruning and fruiting finely; apricots, plums, and some fifty variety of grapes.

GRASSES.

An interesting experiment was going on with grasses. The desideratum is a nutritious and palatable grass that will stand heat and drought, which will furnish winter grazing and good hay. I noted the Paraguay, a great runner, the joints striking down rootlets, and matting the surface completely—valuable, I should say, on blowy, barren, sandy land. Moha grass from Hungary, with blades like our crop-grass, and heads like millet, filling well in defiance of the protracted drought then prevailing.

An East India specimen, with a rapier like blade, but succulent and tender, with an aromatic root, well adapted, I should say, for alluvial soils, imported by the late Gov. Roman, of Louisiana. A fine lot of Resare grass, a self-sowing grass, first found in the old Indian fields in Georgia. Sowed in September it furnishes a winter pasture; in the spring a heavy cutting of hay; and the second growth will yield seed (excellent for poultry) at the rate of ten to twenty bushels per acre, besides replanting itself. I do not know the botanical classification of this valuable grass.

This enterprising gentleman solved the problem of what can be done in South Mississippi. His experiments in farming, in stock, in fruits, grasses, and in the chemistry and analysis of soils, and the composition and adaptation of fertilizers, were invaluable. Such men, if they do not grow rich themselves, contribute even by failures, to the wealth of the country. Every experiment is a step forward in progress and development. We profit by disaster quite as much as by success. The moral courage—the perseverance—the liberality—the science of one such man as Ducayette, is worth more to the Republic than a regiment of orators and politicians. If the example could be followed—if his spirit of improvement could be diffused—the extensive district of our State, between Pearl and Alabama rivers, south of latitude 31, would become productive and remunerative beyond all present calculation.

As it is, I look forward to material progress with trust and confidence. Perfect order and good feelings prevail in this section of Mississippi. The country is filling up with intelligent and educated men. Society at and around Pascagoula is cultivated and refined. Immigration is invited. The lumber trade has drawn here both capital and enterprise. It only needs the fostering hand of Government to make this point a great commercial mart, whose exports would enrich our whole interior, and whose imports from foreign countries would contribute materially to the national treasury. It is hoped that Congress and the Legislature will adopt a liberal and enlightened policy, and convert the great natural advantages of Pascagoula and the vast resources of our pine woods into a national blessing.

HEALTH.

While the subject of health is a very important one to the man who seeks a permanent home for himself and his family, it can scarcely be supposed that, in a publication like this, we can give a very minute account of the diseases peculiar to this State. To the general inquiry, "Is it healthy?" we unhesitatingly reply "Yes." By this we do not mean to convey the impression that men, women and children do not get sick in Mississippi. Men get sick everywhere, and they die everywhere; whether in the frigid, temperate or torrid zones; whether on the land or on the sea; whether on the mountain top or in the valley.

We may say, in general terms, that in the vicinity of our water-courses—in the great alluvial valley of the Father of Waters, and in the prairie counties, at certain seasons of the year, many of the people have intermittent and remittent fevers, and other diseases common to malarial districts; but, as a rule, these are easily controlled, and with proper precautions, may, to a great extent, be avoided. The uplands and tablelands are as exempt from disease as the most favored portion of the United States. We do not make these statements because they may look well in a report which is intended to induce immigration. We have the figures with which to prove what we say—that Mississippi, in point of health, will compare favorably with any State in the Union. The mortuary statistics, as recorded in the ninth census of the United States, will bear witness to the truth of our statements.

By way of illustration, we will take, at random, four States, two northern and two southern, and see how they compare. Suppose we take Illinois, Michigan, Alabama and Mississippi. We make two tables, one showing the total population and the total number of deaths in the year 1870, as follows:

	ILLINOIS.	MICHIGAN.	ALABAMA.	MISSISSIPPI.
Total population . . .	2,539,891	1,184,059	996,992	827,922
Total deaths, 1870. .	33,672	11,181	10,771	9,172

It will be perceived from the above, that the ratio of deaths is very favorable for Mississippi. Taking Illinois for illustration, we find, at the outset, that the population of that State is only a small fraction more than three times the population of Mississippi, whereas the number of deaths in 1870, in Illinois is nearly four times the number in Mississippi. In fact, the figures show that while the deaths in Mississippi amount to one in ninety of the population, the deaths in Illinois amount to one in seventy-five.

Keeping in view the relative population of the States, the same ratio will be found to approximate very closely in the following table, which shows some of the principal causes of death. For further particulars, we refer the reader to the census report itself:

OUR SYSTEM OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Public schools in Mississippi were very rare previous to the war; but since the State has been reconstructed an effective system has been inaugurated, and it is daily growing into popular favor. There are only four out of the seventy-three counties in the State, that have not levied taxes for school purposes for the year 1874. These are, however, very poor counties, and they depend upon the assistance that will be given them by the State. If the maintenance of public schools will induce immigration into the State, Mississippi will get her share, as the people are ready and willing to maintain and cherish their school system.

TEACHERS.

There are employed in this State about three thousand teachers. Many of them are excellent scholars—graduates of Northern and Eastern colleges, academies and high schools. They are devoted to their work, and a commendable spirit of emulation exists between the different counties to see which can secure and pay the highest salary to the best teachers. The teachers are also imbued with the same spirit, and labor zealously to make their schools completely successful. Many of the teachers employed are connected with some of the best white families in the State. And though not exactly accustomed to the work of teaching in the public schools—they never having attended them—succeed admirably, and become quickly adapted to their work.

The average term of the public schools, in the cities and large towns, is nine months; in the country six months; and the average salary paid to teachers is fifty dollars per month. Principals of schools, in which there is an average attendance of one hundred or more pupils, get a salary of one hundred dollars per school month, viz: twenty days. First grade teachers get from sixty to seventy-five dollars per month; and second grade teachers get from thirty-five to sixty dollars per month.

SCHOOL HOUSES.

In all the cities and large towns the school houses are commodious, comfortable, neat, and have the most of the modern improvements, while in most of the counties they have from twelve to thirty plain, neat and comfortable school houses. In places where they have not a sufficient number of school houses, the authorities hire churches, or other buildings, for school purposes.

RESOURCES.

The resources from which the public schools are to derive their support would be ample could all of them be productive, and be given exclusively to the cause of public education. We hold them, however, in reserve, and in a few years we hope to be able to derive the full benefit of them.

There is a State tax of four mills on the dollar levied upon the real and personal property in the State, that is used exclusively for the payment of teachers' salaries. It is the duty of the County Superintendents to make an estimate of what the above levy amounts to, report the same to the Board of Supervisors of his county, and they are compelled, by law, to levy for a sufficient amount to meet the deficit that may occur between the amount the State levy will raise, and the amount required to pay the requisite salaries to the teachers. In addition to these, the money derived from the sale of licenses to retail vendors of liquor and keepers of dram shops, is appropriated to the Common School Fund. This fund the law requires to be invested in government bonds, never to be diminished, the interest of which is to be used for common school purposes throughout the State. The money derived from the redemption or sale of lands belonging to the State is used for the same purpose.

The interest on what is known as the Chickasaw School Fund amounts to about twenty-five thousand dollars per annum, and is used in twenty-three counties. The sixteenth section of every township in every county also belongs to the common schools, but they were leased a quarter of a century ago for a long period of years, and in many cases the money was stolen or squandered. A portion of it, however, yields an income still, and assists materially in supporting our public schools. It would be safe to say that about a million and a quarter of dollars are spent annually in support of our public schools.

OTHER SCHOOLS.

In addition to our public schools, we have at this writing, two large, flourishing Normal schools, for the purpose of training teachers for the public schools. These schools are supported by the State, are provided with an efficient corps of teachers, and are doing efficient service.

We also, have two universities that receive large annual appropriations from the State, and are rapidly educating our young men.

With the hearty co-operation of the people, an efficient corps of teachers and county superintendents, we hope to make the public school system of Mississippi second to no other State in the Union.

TAXATION AND FINANCE.

There is no subject in which all the people of a State or community are as vitally and personally interested, as that of taxation. All are interested, because all are required to bear, to a greater or less degree, its burdens.

As this is true of those who are already citizens of the State, so is it also of those who may desire to become citizens and purchase property, or engage in any of the various enterprises involving the investment of labor or capital. To induce this, one of the first and most important steps to be taken, is to show by facts and figures that what are usually designated as the "burdens of taxation" are light and bear equally and justly on all classes. To do this is the object of this article, and in no better way can this be done than to give briefly and concisely a statement of the financial condition of our State at this time. Being just in the midst of the financial or fiscal year, it will be difficult, or in fact impossible, to give the exact figures, but they will be near enough for all the practical purposes of this article.

The above statement shows a levy of $6\frac{3}{4}$ mills for current expenses, and $3\frac{1}{4}$ mills to pay bonded debt and interest, making a total levy of 10 mills, or one per centum, on the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the State. In addition to this there is a tax of 4 mills levied upon the taxable property of the State, designated and known as a Teachers' Fund, amounting in the aggregate to \$490,000. This fund is collected and distributed pro rata among the several counties of the State according to the number of educable children in each, and is sufficient alone to employ and pay 1000 teachers for six months in the year at a salary of \$75 00 per month each. The several counties pay on an average, for county purposes, a tax about equal to the State tax, making a total for State and county purposes a levy of from $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 per centum on the valuation of the taxable property. In some few counties the per centum is greater on account of aid voted to railroads and the building of courthouses or jails, but only in a few is this the case. Taking into consideration the very low value at which property, real and personal, is assessed, this showing compares most favorably with the rate of taxation in other States; and but few, if any, can make a more favorable exhibit. Besides this, there is every reason to believe that the present rates can and will be materially reduced by wholesome legislation at the coming session of the Legislature in January next. To accomplish this greatly to be desired result, should, and doubtless will be, the earnest endeavor of every department of the present State Government to the end that enterprise and capital may seek an investment among us, and the material interests of the State promoted and advanced,

MANUFACTURES.

Manufacturing interests in Mississippi are still in their infancy. Several factories, located in different parts of the State, successfully turn out shirtings, sheetings, yarns, and other cotton goods. Possessed of remarkable facilities for the establishment of factories, an inviting field is presented to capitalists to make profitable and safe investments. The following figures, compiled from the census returns of 1870, show what has actually been accomplished:

It will be seen that this field of enterprise in our State would be almost without competition to manufacturers of practical experience. That such will avail themselves of these advantages is our earnest desire.

LABOR AND ITS REWARDS.

As in the case of other States which are almost wholly dependent for their productions, and hence for their annual profit and income and wealth, upon agriculture, Mississippi is anxious to secure labor. In fact, labor is the capital most required in the State, and the capital which will pay even better returns than any other investment capable of being made. Hence, it is for the advantage of the people to encourage the immigration of the laboring classes; as we hope, and are able to show, it is for the best interests of the citizen and the mechanic, as well as the unskilled laborer, to seek our borders and make a home among us. In no other portion of the world can labor find better or more profitable employment than in Mississippi. Especially is this true regarding agricultural laborers. Here you have the virgin soil, enriched by centuries of accumulations from the luxuriant grasses and herbage, and the soil which has been cultivated, and all at the very lowest valuation possible. All it needs is labor to erect a log house, break down and cut off the trees and the vegetation, and the cultivation of the soil. No elaborate preparations for the first few years. No great labor to erect a house to keep off the frosts, for it is never so cold as to freeze very hard in at least the southern portions of the State, and no great labor in irrigating and in enriching the earth. The very first year's labor sometimes realizes sufficient to give the small farmer enough to make himself comfortable for the future. If this course is not pursued, then working on wages for a year or two for a reliable planter will enable the immigrant to purchase land and erect upon it such buildings as his wants may demand. It makes no difference what a man's trade or calling may be, he can find employment at some price in all parts of the State. The prices paid may not be as high as in some other sections of the United States, but they are reasonable as compared with the cost of living. Board for laborers is cheap. Housekeeping, as it is elsewhere, is cheaper and better, if the circumstances be propitious. The following list of prices for journeymen mechanics, which we have taken some pains to collect, will be found correct. Where we have given but one price, it has reference to only first-class workmen. Where two or three prices are furnished, they allude to first-class, second-class and third-class workmen:

Watchmakers, $15.00 to $20.00 per week.

Hack-drivers, $35.00 to $40.00 per month.

Wagoners, in towns, $30.00 to 40.00 per month.

Salesmen, in towns, $40.00 to $75.00 per month.

Book-keepers, in towns, $1,000.00 to $1,800.00 per year.

Wagon-makers, $2.00 to $3.00 per day.

Blacksmiths, shoers, etc., $2.00 to $3.00 per day.

Saddle and harness makers, $15.00 to $25.00 per week.

Tailors, $20.00 to $25.00 (during business season) per week.

Carpenters and builders, $2.00 to $3.50 per day.

Boot and shoe makers, $12.00, $15.00 and $25.00 per week.

Machinists, $2.50 and $3.50 per day.

Plasterers, $2.50 to $4.00 per day.

Brickmasons $2.00 to $4.00 per day.

Printers, 60c per 1,000 Ms, or $25.50 per week.

Field laborers. $10.00 to $16.00 per month (and found.)

Other occupations do not differ materially from the prices paid at the North and West.

ADMINISTRATION AND STATE OFFICIALS.

As may be judged from the character of its population, the State of Mississippi is at present Republican in its dominant politics, and it is fated long to remain so, provided the majority is permitted to rule. But it is not so partisan as to interfere with any man enjoying his own opinions and giving expression to them to the fullest and freest extent. In fact, among Republicans, no man meets ostracism or outrage for saying what he thinks and believes upon political topics. We say come here and settle, and labor for the interests of the State and for yourselves, be you Republicans or Democrats, or of no politics at all, and you will meet a cordial welcome. It is not the question to be asked by Republicans, are you rich? Are you a Methodist, or are you a Baptist? Are you a Republican or Democrat? But, are you honest, industrious and truthful and fair-dealing in your intercourse with your fellow-man. All are welcome; all are needed. If you have capital, good; if you have no capital excepting your strong muscles and hard hands, still well and good. You are welcome to the best you can earn for yourself in the State. You are more than welcome; your presence is desired. This is the feeling of the men and women forming the dominant party in the State. This is the feeling of all in the State who are not blinded to their own best interests by passion and prejudice; and these latter are, from day to day and from year to year, growing less and less powerful in the country.

At the head of the present State administration is Governor Adelbert Ames, late of Massachusetts, a man of foresight experience and integrity. He has recommended, and the Legislature has originated and put in practice, a financial scheme which, if not interfered with, will soon clear the State from the limited debt now hanging over it, and place it among the most independent in the Union. Aided by the following able and efficient staff of officials, by a Legislature second to none in intelligence and devotion to State interests, the successful career of the State is guaranteed past question.

MISSISSIPPI STATE OFFICERS.

ADELBERT AMES, Governor.

ALEX. K. DAVIS, Lieutenant Governor.

I. D. SHADD, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

JAMES HILL, Secretary of State.

W. H. GIBBS, Auditor of Public Accounts.

GEO. H. HOLLAND, Treasurer.

GEO. E. HARRIS, Attorney General.

THOS. W. CARDOZO, Superintendent of Education.

RICHARD GRIGGS, Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture.

FINIS H. LITTLE, Assistant Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture.

CHAS. W. BUSH, Assistant Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture.

E. G. PEYTON, Chief Justice Supreme Court.

JONATHAN TARBELL, Associate Justice.

H. F. SIMRALL, Associate Justice.

G. E. HARRIS and G. H. SIMRALL, Law Reporters.

H. W. WARREN, Levee Commissioner.

JOHN WILLIAMS, State Librarian.

A. G. PACKER, Adjutant General.

With an administration thus constituted; with no serious troubles of a political nature within our borders; with a climate unsurpassed, and a soil capable of the highest state of cultivation; with skies that rival in beauty and softness the far-famed skies of sunny Italy; with fruits, birds and flowers and rare exotics that vie with those of any other clime; with water power, timber and other material in abundance, all that Mississippi needs is the presence of the people to enjoy and to till the land to make it the Paradise of the Western Hemisphere.

CHURCHES.

Churches of the several denominations are plentiful, and attended liberally. The Baptist and Methodist are perhaps the most numerous, while the Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Disciples, Catholics and others have their share of attendants.

STATE LANDS.

The list of lands printed in the appendix have been forfeited to the State for non-payment of taxes. The counties that do not appear were not ready when this volume went to press, but will be printed hereafter and copies supplied to those who may desire them. These lands are subject to entry under an Act entitled "an Act amendatory of and supplementary to an Act to create the office of Commissioner of Immigration and Agriculture," and for other purposes, approved April 14th, 1873. Approved April 6th, 1874, a copy of which is printed in the appendix for information.

UNITED STATES LANDS.

There are quite 4,000,000 acres of these lands, located principally in the Southern part of this State, in what is known as the "Pine Timbered Region." These lands are valuable, and can be secured by the immigrant at a very small cost. All applications for information to Commissioner Griggs will be promptly attended to, and complete satisfaction given.

RAILROAD TRANSPORTATION

The Department of Immigration and Agriculture has completed arrangements with the Illinois Central, New Orleans, St. Louis, and Chicago, Memphis and Charleston, and Mobile and Ohio Railways to transport actual immigrants over their respective roads with their baggage, at reduced rates. Certificates to secure these rates will be furnished upon application.

APPENDIX.

The lands described in this Appendix have been forfeited to the State for taxes, and are subject to entry upon the conditions set forth in the following Act :
